Supreme Healing Dharani of Lapis Lazuli Light Medicine Buddha

Long Sutra Dharani in Sanskrit

The Sutra-delivered Dharani of Medicine Buddha, transmitted directly by Buddha, is famous for healing the faithful, especially when chanted in the original Sutra Sanskrit.

The 54-syllable Dharani of the Lapis Lazuli Healing Buddha, chanted at least seven times, ideally 108 times, has been recommended by Buddhist teachers for centuries for healing. There have been countless stories of miraculous healings from this Dharani

Suggestions for Practice

1. As a Mahayana Buddhist mantra, it is critical to always first take Refuge in the Three Jewels, the Buddha, the Dharma, and the Sangha. These are your Triple Refuge. We take refuge in the every Buddha and Enlightened Bodhisattva as our examples. We take Refuge in the Dharma of the Buddhas as sacred, infallible teachings, which is the true Refuge. We take Refuge in the supporting Sangha, who kindly support us. A simple Refuge statement is usually made, silently, or out loud, while bowing our heads or prostrating with respect:

“I take Refuge in the Three Jewels, the Buddha, the Dharma, and the Sangha until I reach Enlightenment for the benefit of all sentient beings.”

2. After taking Refuge, chant the mantra, ideally while visualizing the Buddha as glowing light, with healing light entering your body. Since this is a Mahayana Practice, we also visualize the light going out to all sentient beings in the universe and healing them. The Mahayana Buddhist always has compassion for all sentient beings, even those who try to harm us.

3. After chanting mantras it is vital to dedicate the merit at the end. A short Mahayana Buddhist dedication is:

“I dedicate the merit of this practice for the cause of Enlightenment, for the benefit of all sentient beings.”

You can embellish your dedication with specific goals of your recitation, but always at least end with the dedication for the merit of all sentient beings.
