Windhorse Tara Practice:

Tara, the Wind of Life; Tara, Goddess of Wind, Buddha of Activity, Karma Mother

Tara Windhorse Practice is one of the most popular practices in Vajrayana and Mahayana — and according to the introduction from the teacher Trulshik Adeu Rinpoche:

"This windhorse practice, relying upon Noble Lady Tārā, is a prayer that fulfils all wishes."

Windhorse is Prana or Chi

Windhorse refers to Prana, or Chi, which is Buddha Mother Tara's domain. It also refers to fulfilling wishes, since we see the Windhorse on every prayer flag in Tibetan tradition. The Windhorse symbolically carries our wishes, prayers and aspirations on Tara's winds, so that she hears our noble aspirations. You also see windhorse flags of different colors, representing different activities.

How to Practice

In this practice, we begin by Taking Refuge, followed by the 21 Tara Dharani praise as many times as you can, then end with this visualization and practice -- which sends your aspirations and wishes to Green, White, Red, Yellow, Blue or Black Tara, ensuring speedy wish-fulfilment and blessings.

Due to the importance of wind and sound in Buddhism, and also life-sustaining chi, the Windhorse Tara practice is very important. It is a potent way to tap into her power and blessings. It is both supplication for blessings, and praise of her qualities as the Activity of all the Buddhas.

At the end of the 21 Tara Dharani Praise chanting, or at the end of your Tara practice, recite this well-known practice from the great teacher Trulshik Adeu Rinpoche, called Windhorse Practice of Tara.

Visualization

Visualize the wish-fulfilling horse carrying your wishes into the sky to Tara's ear. The wish-fulfilling horse is a beautiful flying horse. You can visualize your wind horse with the symbol of the Three Jewels, or the wish-fulfilling jewel on his back. He carries your wishes to Tara.

- For this practice, we visualize a white windhorse carrying our pacifying wishes and supplications to White Tara.
- This is followed by a Golden windhorse carrying our enriching and growth wishes to Golden Yellow Tara.
- Then, a red windhorse carrying our controlling and magnetizing wishes to Red Tara.
- Next, is a blue windhorse carrying our wishes to "repel our enemies", who include both internal and external enemies.
- Finally, a green windhorse carriers our final wishes for protection and refuge to Green Tara.

Or, if this is too difficult, you can see the more traditional white Windhorse riding skyward on a rainbow of the same five colors. If this is too difficult, you see just the rainbow of light leaving your body and entering Tara's body of light.

As you meditate and chant the verses, mentally recall your specific wishes.

At the end of the Tārā practice, or after reciting the Praises to Tārā as much as one can, begin reciting either in Tibetan or English:

The one who holds the name of the Eighth Trulshik composed this to fulfill the earnest request of Golok Akyong Miwang Tendzin Gyatso, and due to the dire need for such a prayer. May it be the cause of total victory!
